"Teddy's Goat"

Two-reel Century Comedy

Featuring

Charles Dorety and Teddy, the Great Dane

TEDDY, our great Dane friend, is awakened by the inevitable ringing of the alarm clock. He throws it out of the window, but it is thrown back. In his anger he stamps upon it, and breaks it into pieces. Then he goes back to bed.

His master, an ambitious milkman, who allows his little son to do all of the work, realizes that a milkman's duty is to deliver milk—and he gets out of bed. He calls Teddy and instructs him to get the goat ready for milking. This goat, by the way, gives forty quarts without a prescription.

On his route he calls on his sweetheart, who is also the sweetheart of the cop. Then he delivers his milk. His rival plans to spoil his business, and opens the milk bottles. He squeezes some lemon into each one. But Teddy, always on the alert, sees this and changes the bottles.

In desperation the villain steals Teddy's goat, but again Teddy is on his guard. He rescues the goat, and when he returns to his master arrives in time to see him win the cop's sweetheart.
